Sidney Broadwater of Moberly, a freight engineer on the Wabash, was killed in a collision at Kansas City Tuesday of last week. He was caught between the engine and tender and his body crushed to a shapeless mass.

Of the camp-meeting held at College Mound the Huntsville Herald correspondent from there says: "This was one of those 'old-time religion' camp-meetings, and the good that has already resulted, and no doubt will result from this convocation of praying men and women is incalculable."

The Lovick's Mill correspondent of the Huntsville Herald last week, speaking of a picnic held at Woodville, says: "The stand was an insignificant saloon, various beverages calculated to make drunk come, being freely dispensed therefrom to all who had the price. The ratio of the drunks to the sober being two to one, the latter being mostly of the feminine persuasion."

The versatile Col. Jo. Rutherford of Darksville has read the speech of acceptance by W. J. Bryan and attended the opening of the campaign at Sedalia, which have greatly enthused his Democratic blood. He says Bryan's speech of acceptance is the most masterly production he ever read, that nothing better emanated from Thomas Jefferson, and that Bryan and Stevenson will sweep the country. Of course the colonel is good authority. He knows a thing or two, and what he doesn't know he guesses at with a good degree of accuracy.

Judge B. F. Harvey of near Moberly, one of Randolph county's best and most prominent citizens, died suddenly of apoplexy Monday of last week. A passenger engine set fire to the dry vegetation on his farm, and while assisting in extinguishing the fire he had a sun stroke, followed by apoplexy, with fatal termination. He was born in Howard county in 1833, was a graduate of Bethany college in West Virginia and had been a successful business man. He was president of and a large stockholder in a Mcberly bank. He is an uncle to Prof. Estell Harvey, principal of the Keytesville public schools.

The Huntsville Herald tells a story of a huckster who called at a farmhouse near Jacksonville and inquired of the lady if she had any chickens for sale. She told him she had a fine lot of them, but none cooped, and that if he would call the next day she would have them ready for him. This was satisfactory to Mr. Huckster and he left promising to return. True to her word the lady cooped a large number of chickens, but going out early the next morning discovered some sneak thief had come during the night and stolen the last one of them. In looking around, however, she discovered a pocket-book containing $60, which she appropriated, believing it to have belonged to the huckster who, she believed, had stolen the chickens. Later in the day the huckster called and was told the ill luck that had befallen the lady. To satisfy himself that things were as represented he went to see the vacant coop, but kept his eye on the ground as if looking for something which he never found. The general impression is that he paid a pretty good price for the chickens, at least the lady is well satisfied.

In the midst of the terrible drought that prevailed all over the county at the time, Dr. Towles of Slater bet a hat that it would rain the second Saturday of August, and sure enough it did.

A set of counterfeiting tools were recently found in the woods, near McAllister Springs. Jesse Briles and Frank Kemer were arrested with some counterfeit money in their possession.

Phil Lemons was arrested at Marshall last week on complaint from Oklahoma, where he was wanted on a charge of embezzlement. He did not want to go to jail and proposed to pay for a guard, which was granted him, and while the guard slept the prisoner escaped.

On the 16th inst. Col. Fremont, son of the pathfinder and grandson of Missouri's great senator, passed through Slater with his regiment from Fort Thomas, Ky., to San Francisco. Quite a number of the soldiers wore Bryan badges. Col. Fremont said his mother lives at Los Angeles, California and is 78 years old.

Trade Follows the Flag.

Trade follows the flag. Of course it does. The government statistics prove it. In the last year the United States have brought from the Philippines islands $5,000,000 worth of goods. During the same period there have been sent from this country to the Philippines, according to the figures of President McKinley's bureau of statistics, the products of American labor to the enormous amount of $1,233,000. As a financial transaction, by the way, if this was all profit it would require 20 years to equal the first cost of the Philippines to say nothing of the cost of war, and the inestimable value of human lives.

This trade consists of what? Of the twelve hundred thousand dollars more than one-half was for army supplies. Of the remainder, $375,000 was for beer and $75,000 for whiskey, more than one-fourth of the entire trade for the year. This is the trade the Philippine war brings to this country and these are the blessings of Christian civilization we are carrying under the stars and stripes to the brown men of the jungle.

Trade follows the flag! Of course it does. It goes in the hearse and the beer wagon.

"Through the months of June and July our baby was teething and took a running off of the bowels and sickness of the stomach," says O. P. M. Holliday of Deming, Ind. "His bowels moved from five to eight times a day. I had a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy in the house and gave him four drops in a teaspoonful of water, and he got better at once." Sold by H. M. Sigloch, City drug store.
